Commentary: The perspective of peace becomes more and more probable.

The upward turn of US stock markets yesterday afternoon might be an indicator that the worst of the credit crisis is over. What else could follow after peace and breakdown of the acting out US government have been factored into the markets?

A change of mood expresses itself also in media imagery. I am going to show you some examples below. These are only proof for a temporary cool down of the the credit crisis. But since I cannot imagine what overwhelming horror is not yet factored into the markets beyond peace and collapse of the government I am inclined to think that these fantasies might also have a significance beyond a shorttime horizon.

Now, let's look at the imagery. In the following you see how the fantasies on stock markets have become less threatening and chaotic. First some images from before the turnaround in stock markets. In the following picture the flag is hanging down. Psychohistorians interpret this as a sign that the group is overwhelmed by deepest traumatic feelings stemming from prenatal placental crises of the individuals:

Yahoo 10.8.07, 15.10 U.S. stocks head for sharply lower open

Traders crowd the floor of the New York Stock Exchange near the close of trading, Thursday afternoon, Aug. 9, 2007. Wall Street plunged again Thursday after a French bank said it was freezing three funds that invested in U.S. subprime mortgages because it was unable to properly value their assets. The Dow Jones industrials extended its series of triple-digit swings, this time falling more than 380 points. (AP Photo/Richard Drew)

In the following photograph, nervous traders, beleaguered from their unconscious traumatic feelings, are seeing from the perspective of a child. This also represents feelings of rage and anxiety stemming from early lifetime of the individuals.

Stocks tumble after Fed adds liquidity

NEW YORK - Wall Street tumbled again Wednesday after the Federal Reserve added more cash to the banking system but failed to quash investors' jitters about problems in lending

The second of the following 3 pictures from yesterday morning shows a disordered crowd of nervous traders. The third shows a death bringing US flag lying on a coffin and the figures in the foreground as mourning people.

Stock Markets News

Asian, European stocks fall

AP - 9 minutes ago

TOKYO - Asian stocks hit their lowest levels in months Thursday — and European stocks followed in early trade — battered by persistent anxiety over U.S. housing loan problems and potential damage to global financial markets.

U.S. stocks head for further pullback

AP - 16 minutes ago

NEW YORK - U.S. stocks appeared headed for another sharp retrenchment Thursday as fears persisted of widening problems with some mortgages and tighter access to credit.

Futures slide as global rout intensifies

Reuters - 18 minutes ago

NEW YORK (Reuters) - Stock index futures slid on Thursday as global equities sold off on concerns about a widening fallout from worsening credit conditions and diminishing appetite for riskier assets.

After the turn around of stock markets images change. So the following photograph shows stock traders well-orderd, lika a music orchestra:

Wall Street manages late turnaround

The flag below is no more hanging or covering a coffin. A wall, see street sign, against chaos and disorder has at least temporarily erected.

Wall Street manages a late turnaround

AP - 16 minutes ago

NEW YORK - Wall Street pulled off a dramatic late-session turnaround to close mixed Thursday after bargain hunters lured by weeks of massive declines came back to the stock market. The Dow Jones industrials, down more than 340 points in afternoon trading, ended the day with a loss of just 13.

Now let's leave the realm of economy and look at 2 other group fantasies. People seem to look for signs of hope. So not threatening fantasies on babies and marriage find their way in the headlines:

Chinese couple tried to name baby "@" Reuters - Thu Aug 16, 3:04 AM ET

The group now seems to long for motherly protection and nourishing women instead of war and chaos:

Conclusion: The worst of the credit crisis and the worst downward pressure in stock markets could be behind us. After a shaky transition period new market patterns could emerge. What will drive markets in the future has to be seen.

The frequency of future newsletter will be reduced since my holidays from work come to an end.
